

European Patents

A patent that has been granted by the European Patent Office subsequently has to be filed in European countries of your choice. This can now take one of two routes:

- Validation – Direct filing in the individual countries of interest to you (see below list)
- Unitary Patent – A single patent covering 17 participating countries (see below list)

There is also the option to 'fill the gaps' by validating directly in the countries that your Unitary Patent is missing.

Validation

Assuming your European Patent has been granted in English there may be translation requirements. We have outlined a list of the countries that require translations and approximate costs of Validation in each country. Renewals fees will be due annually in each country. If you choose the Validation route there will also be a small fee to 'opt-out' of the Unitary Patent system to avoid your patent being the subject of jurisdiction.

Unitary Patent

Again, assuming your European Patent has been granted in English there is the requirement to translate your full patent specification into French or German. Approximate costs for the filing of Unitary Patent is around £1000 + VAT including translation costs. One renewal fee will be due annually to keep the patent maintained.
